Interesting Memorandum of Subscribers to the Confederate States Loan Fund.

GENERAL LEE A SUBSCRIBER

Names of Many Other Well Known Men Appear in List Just Brought to Light.

How many of the modern generation know that General Robert 3'. Lee gave not only his great abilities and undying devotion to the cause of the Confederacy, but also was a large subscriber to the Confederate bonds?

light again by the discovery of a little subscribers to the Confederate States Loan, found in an old safe, belonging to Mr. R. A. Lancaster, who was financial agent for the Confederate Government. The safe had been left in the house oc cupled by Mr. Lancaster during the war and was later sent to his office, where it was stored, unopened, until the last few was stored, unopened, until the last few weeks.

The list of subscriptions is only partial, but it is made up almost entirely of Richmond names, and the record of the patriots of those times is thus orought to mind again. A noteworthy fact is the extraordinary volume of subscriptions made in March and April, 1842, at which time the prospects of the Confederacy were very bright, but, even then, the bonds were slightly depreciated. The list is here given:

During the summer Mr. Proit wrote:—

"Gentlemen:—I am now almost 91 years of ago and am in excellent health, owing to the use of Duffy's Malt Whiskey. Catarrh of the throat troubled me for four years, and I tried many remedies, without any benefit, until a friend induced me to try Duffy's Malt Whiskey.

"My general condition was very poor also, until 1 used Duffy's, but I am very glad to state that since using this grand medicine the catarrh has left me, my general health is better than it has been for years, and I know that it has prolonged my life. I most certainly would not be without it."

This letter of Mrs. Pratt was taken at random from among thousands received from men and women who gratefully thank Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for their wondorful freedom from disease and for their marvelous old age. More are published in a booklet, which you may have free by writing.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a gentle, soothing, tonic-stimulant, which replaces the weakened, diseased itssues, tones up the nerves, strengthens the heart, makes digestion and nutrition perfect.—It purifies the blood and regulates the circulation so that every organ is made to do its work perfectly and fully, keeping the whole system in vigorous health and lengthening the days far beyond the century. Every testimonial is published in good faith and guaranteed.

Ex-Champion Wants to Meet Winner of Nelson-Britt Match.

HIS TRAINING DID HIM UP

Overtaxed Himself in Matter of Stripping Off Flesh in a Hurry.

By W. W. Naughton.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 3.-Now that the excitement has cooled off and there has been ample time for a thorough interchange of opinions among the savants of sportdom, the impression is crystalizing that Young Corbett's fight against Battling Nelson was far and away the poorest of his career. This is about the only point on which there is to account for Corbett's poor showing quite a variety of views are expressed. has made of the once terrible Deliver as flabby little lump of humanity. A less extreme view is that Corbett overtaxed himself in the matter of stripping off flesh in a hurry and that directly he felt the stress and strain of a hard and fast encounter he wilted.

What Corbett Says.

Malt Whiskey.

Mrs. Phobe Annella Pratt, widow of William Pratt, yesterday celebrated her nine-tleth birthday anniversary at her home, 186 Broadway, Chelsea. A reception was held from two to six, during which the old lady received numerous callers and was the recipient of many presents. She was assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. George Pratt, of Stoughton: Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Pratt, of Chelsea, Mrs. Eugeno Pratt, two of her grundchildren. Chester and William Pratt, of Chelsea, and Ida and Mabel Pratt, of Stoughton. The reception was planned by her relatives and the members of the First Baptist Church of Chelsea, of which she is a member.

What Corbett Says.

Corbett himself, while trying hard to keep from saying anything that might be construed into an attempt to belittle Nelson's victory is teiling sympathizing friends that he felt his strength leave him in the very first round.

"I suppose I will have to look around a bit to find the real reason of my loss of fighting power, but at this time it seems to me as though the thims I thought would help me had the opposite effect. For instance, I feit all right while I was training, and I remarked several times that I believed the eight months' lay-orf I had had benefited me. I have a suspicion now that it was the severe course of training after so many months of idleness that did me up. However, I am going to experiment a bit to try and find out where I stand. No one can tell me that I am all in yet by a long way. I am going to begin all over again, and try and get back to my old form by slower stages. I am going to Los Angeles, where I will be ready to sign with anyone who cares to meet me and I will move heaven and earth to get on with the winner of the Britt-Nelson match. I believe the public would like to see me get a chance of that kind, and I hope the give it to me." to give it to me."

Camp Secrets.

Camp Secrets.

I have often referred to the secrecy observed around the Corbett camp in respect to the Denver lad's weight. It is the fixed belief in San Francisco that Corbett has more trouble than any fighter living in ridding hinself of surplus. During his recent preparadion no one was allowed to see him weigh, and the official reports given out in regard to his daily fluctuations and reductions were always accepted with a grain of sait. It is known positively that on former occasions he has had to resort to vapor baths a few hours before weighing time in order to save his forfeit and there is reason for believing that he had to follow the same course on the date of his contest with Nelson.

Barney Oldfield, the automobilist, gave some criminating testimony in this connection, albeit he did it quite innocently. It appears that Barney agreed to go out to the beach with his automobile and bring Corbett into town an hour or so before weighing time.

"What do you think," said Barney, "when I got to Sheehan's I had to wait lifeause Corbett was taking a vapor bath.

theause Corbett was taking a vapor

Those who listened nudged each other because they had heard of these vapor baths before, and poor Barney did not dream that he was giving away the ing out process would be necessary in order to bring line little collow to 120 pounds. Nelson Surprised.

Pattling Neison says that he was surprised to find how light a puncher Corbett is, after being warned so repeatedly in respect to the crushing force of the Denver puglist's punches. At the same time Neison thinks that Corbett was in its condition to give a good account of him self if he had been allowed to cut ou his own pace.

"I said I was going to fight faster than I ever did before, and I guess I kept my word," said Nelson. "It was the pace that killed Corbett. I found out in the that killed Coroott. I found out in the second round that I could reach him with short arm blows, and I kept right on top of him during the balance of the fight. I never figured Corbett to be any more dangerous than Eddle Hanlon, and I was right, I still think that Herrera is the greatest of all the 130 pound men I have met and the most dangerous."

right. I still think that research right. I still the 130 pound men I have met, and the most dangerous."

Nelson pays a tribute to Corbett's gameness, and, for that matter, all those who watched the fight have no hesitation in saying that the ex-champion bore up like a Spartan under the severe punishment. As to the endurance he displayed, Corbett refers to it as added reason for wishing to secure another match with Nelson or Britt. He still believes that there is no man of his weight in the husiness cupable of knecking him out. His only lament is that he did not have the power to strike back while Nelson was pounding him, and he argues that a more rational and careful course of preparation will put him in shape to turn the tables on Nelson if it is gestined that they are to

Noison if it is destined that they are to meet again,

But Corbett and his troubles will be forgotten soon, and the coming contest between Nelson and Britt will held the attention of fight followers. It is all settled that they are to now on the night of December 20th, and that Billy Roche, once a Cherry Hill resident and now an adopted native son, is to act as referee.

Only two names were considered in selecting a judge of fisticuffs, to-wit, those of Roche and Eddle Graney. It was given out that Grancy could have the position if he wished to fill it, and that if he did not care to not, the honor was to be conferred upon Roche. As Grancy has announced that he is through with refereing professional lights for the present, and possibly for all time, Roche will be the third man in the ring.

When it was discovered that she had been drinking an effort was made to ascertain from where she had obtained her liquor, and an almost empty flask was found on her. Then she became hilarious, and the officers on duty found it necessary to send her to the First Precinct Station to be cared for, as intoxicated persons are not kept at the House of Detention.

When Mrs. Ferguson had recovered from the effects of her little spree she was returned to the House of Detention and cared for until yesterday afternoon, when she was taken away by the board of cliarities and made comfortable at a charitable institution. Her story to the police was that her husband was a harnessmaker and worked at his trade in the Confederate army until he died. Ten years after the war was over she moved to Anne Arundel county, Md., where she lived until after the death of her youngest boy. Since then, she stated, she has traveled from place to place, selling matches and she laces in pleasant weather. Critics Make Selections, Ignoring South and Great West.

RELATIVE STANDING OF CLUBS

Both Yale and Pennsylvania Have Strong Claims to First Place.

Now that the foot-ball season is ended the experts are endeavoring to pick from various stronger elevens the individual stars in each position, these then being grouped into an eleven known as the All-America team. Any such seleclions are purely matters of opinion as to which there is much difference. Furhermore, the teams are usually made up teams of the West and their claims to consideration. As a matter of fact, little consideration. As a matter of the Western is known in the East of the Western elevens, and there has been no opportunity to compare them with Yale, Ponnsylvania, Princeton, Harvard, Dartmonth, Columbia, Cornell, West Point, Amherst, Annapolis and Carlisle.

By picking from the All-America teams selected by three of the leading Eastern crities the men as to whose greatness all or at loast two of them are agreed, a fair idea of the greatost players of the East in each position may be had. Here, then, is about the make-up of the All-America team, with substitutes in order of merit:
Ends-Shevin, of Yale; Neal, of Yale; Glaze, of Dartmouth, or Gillesple, of West Point, with Weede, of Pennsylvania, or Mathews, of Harvard, substitutes.
Tackles-Cooney, of Princeton; Hogan, of Yale, with Bloomer, of Yale; Thorp, of Columbia, or Stannard, of Princeton.
Center-Tipton, of West Point, with Roraback, of Yale, substitute.
Quarterback—Rockwell, of Yale, with Stevenson, of Pennsylvania, substitute, Haifbacks—Hoyt, of Yale, for one; Hurley, of Harvard; Reynolds, of Pennsylvania, or Mezenthin, of Columbia, for the other, and the two left as substitutes.
Fullbacks—Smith, of Pennsylvania, with Torney, of West Point, or Mills, or Harvard, substitute.
This list, as stated, is purely a matter of opinion, yet as made out above it is a merging or picking of the judgment of the New York Heraid, Sun and Tribune, As a matter of fact no mention is made of Eckersali, of Chicago, who probably measures fully up to the standard of Rockwell, it is probably true also that Carpenter, of North Carolina, will rank fully up with Hoyt, Hurley and Reynolds and the other backs of the great universities. Council, of Virginia, probably approximates the standard of the great universitude of the North.

Relative Standing.

As to the relative standing of the great elevens of the East, this grouping, made by the New York Sun, is probably as fair as any that can be made, hasmuch as many of the teams do not play others, the standard being based on the entire Yale or Pennsylvania for first piace; then Princeton, Dartmouth, Harvard, West Point, Amherst, Annapols, Columbia, Cornell, Carlisle, Bucknell, Lafayette, Georgetown.

Of the Western teams Michigan appears to be entitled to first place, with Minnesota second, Chicago tilird, Wisconsin fourth, Illinois fifth, lowa sixth, Northwestern seventh. This grouping is largely
